SILVERBOY LEVER ACTION (See page 24)

Only those Uberti firearms imported by Stoeger Industries are protected with a 5-year warranty and serviced by factory-trained gunsmiths using genuine Uberti parts right here in the U.S.A. No other importers of Uberti products offer this extended warranty.

1873 HORSEMAN (See page 14)

DREAMS OF THE OLD WEST always conjur up images of six-shooters, lever-action rifles and celebrated buffalo guns that could shoot a mile. These days, original guns are worth thousands of dollars and most are housed in museums or private gun collections and the thought of shooting one of these treasured collector's items would set a museum curator's nerves on edge. In fact, the thrill of shooting a gun from the Old West might have been lost if it were not for gunmaker Aldo Uberti.

In 1959, Aldo Uberti founded A. Uberti, S.r.l. in the village of Gardone Val Trompia in the Italian Alps and began making replicas of Civil War era cap and ball revolvers. Over the years, as the experience and skill of his craftsmen grew, Uberti expanded into replicas of classic lever-action rifles, cowboy six-shooters and big game rifles. Not only are the Uberti guns exacting replicas down to the finest detail, but with modern machinery and materials they're actually better than the originals.

TAKE TO THE FIELD. Competitors in the fast growing sport of Cowboy Action Shooting have been quick to recognize that Uberti guns set the standard by which others are judged. Currently the Uberti 1873 lever-action is the sport's most popular rifle and the 1873 Cattleman revolver is the hottest selling Cowboy Action handgun. However, Uberti firearms aren't just for target shooting—they were designed to take afield. Whether you target shoot or big game hunt, Uberti puts excitement and adventure back into shooting.

1847 WALKER
Black Powder Revolver

1847 WALKER – 9"
ITEM # 340200 Case-hardened, walnut grip

The 1847 Walker design called for a larger frame for increased powder capacity and the strength to fire a .44 caliber bullet.

1847 WALKER

ITEM NUMBER	MODEL	CALIBER	BARREL LENGTH	MATERIALS	MSRP
340200	Walker	.44	9"	C/H Frame, Steel B/S, Brass T/G	$449

SPECIFICATIONS: Cylinder: 6-shot, engraved Number of grooves: 7 Twist: Left BBL: Round Total Length: 15.7" Weight: 4.5 lbs. Finish: Blue Grip: 1-pc Walnut

The Walker's large capacity cylinder allows it to hold up to 60 grains of black powder and offers easy access to the percussion caps.

The Walker was one of the first revolvers fitted with a loading lever. Colt later added a loading lever latch near the muzzle.

1848 DRAGOON
Black Powder Evolved

1848 WHITNEYVILLE DRAGOON – 7½"
ITEM # 340830 Case-hardened, walnut grip

The original Dragoon was manufactured for Colt by Eli Whitney.

1848 1ST MODEL DRAGOON – 7½"
ITEM # 340800 Case-hardened, walnut grip

The 1st Model Dragoon utilizes oval cylinder slots.

1848 2ND MODEL DRAGOON – 7½"
ITEM # 340810 Case-hardened, walnut grip

The 2nd Model Dragoon utilizes squared cylinder slots.

1848 3RD MODEL DRAGOON – 7½"
ITEM # 340860 Case-hardened, walnut grip

The 3rd Model Dragoon utilizes squared cylinder slots and has a rounded trigger guard.

1848 DRAGOON

ITEM NUMBER	MODEL	CALIBER	BARREL LENGTH	MATERIALS	MSRP
340800	First	.44	7.5"	Case-hardened Frame, Brass B/S and T/G	$439
340810	Second	.44	7.5"	Case-hardened Frame, Brass B/S and T/G	$439
340860	Third	.44	7.5"	Case-hardened Frame, Brass B/S and T/G	$439
340830	Whitneyville	.44	7.5"	C/H Frame, Steel B/S, Brass T/G	$439

SPECIFICATIONS: Cylinder: 6-shot, engraved Number of grooves: 7 Twist: Left BBL: Round Total Length: 13.4" Weight: 4.1 lbs. Finish: Blue Grip: 1-pc Walnut

The Dragoons were the first Colt revolvers to feature a latch at the muzzle for the loading lever. This prevented the loading lever from falling during firing.

The Walker and all Dragoon models have integrated loading cut-outs for easy and secure seating of the percussion caps.

Modern machinery and improved materials result in a stronger and more precise metal-to-metal fit on Uberti's replica firearms.

1851 NAVY AND 1860 ARMY CONVERSION

Percussion-to-Cartridge Conversions

1851 NAVY CONVERSION — 7½"
ITEM # 341360 Case-hardened, walnut grip

Original cap-and-ball cylinders were altered or replaced by a cartridge cylinder with a loading gate and new breech face.

1860 ARMY CONVERSION — 5½"
ITEM # 341362 Case-hardened, walnut grip

Colt introduced the Richards-Mason conversion, which involved installing a conversion ring for accepting metallic cartridges.

The frames on Uberti's conversion revolvers are retro-fitted with loading gates to accommodate cartridges, exactly like the originals.

The conversion revolvers were also fitted with ejector rods, a necessity for removing fired casings from the cylinder.

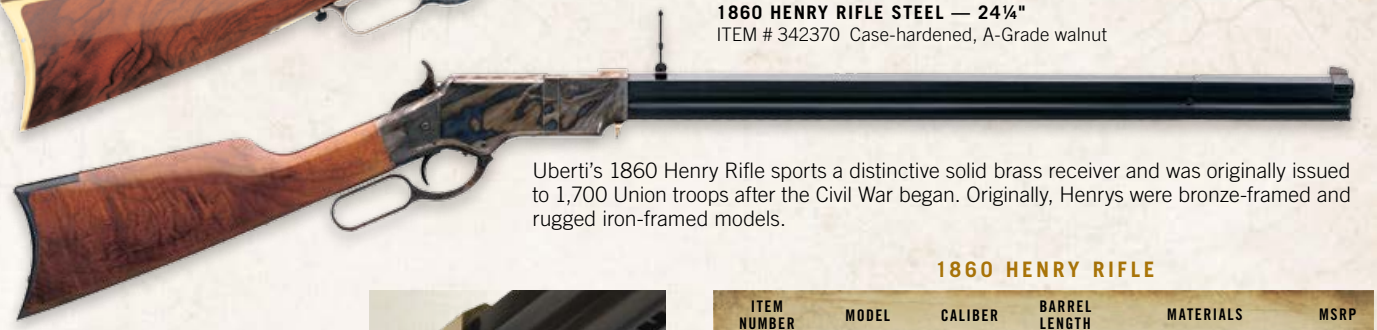
ITEM # 342390 Brass, A-Grade walnut

1860 HENRY RIFLE STEEL — 24¼"
ITEM # 342370 Case-hardened, A-Grade walnut



Uberti's 1860 Henry Rifle sports a distinctive solid brass receiver and was originally issued to 1,700 Union troops after the Civil War began. Originally, Henrys were bronze-framed and rugged iron-framed models.

Uberti's 1860 Henry is true to the original by featuring a lever lock located at the rear of the lever, and a convenient external cartridge follower, which aids in loading the tubular magazine.

1871 ROLLING BLOCK

Hunter Carbine

1871 ROLLING BLOCK — 22"
ITEM # 341400 Case-hardened, A-Grade walnut (centerfire carbines – blue frame)

The rolling block design is one of the strongest actions ever produced. Using modern metals and more precise manufacturing methods, Uberti is able to produce a rifle that's one-third of the original gun's size and weight, yet retains all the strength for use with today's modern ammo.

The original rolling block, designed in 1867 by Remington, is a strong, simple action, not prone to jamming by dirt or rough usage.

Uberti 1871 centerfire rolling block hunting carbines feature a blue frame.

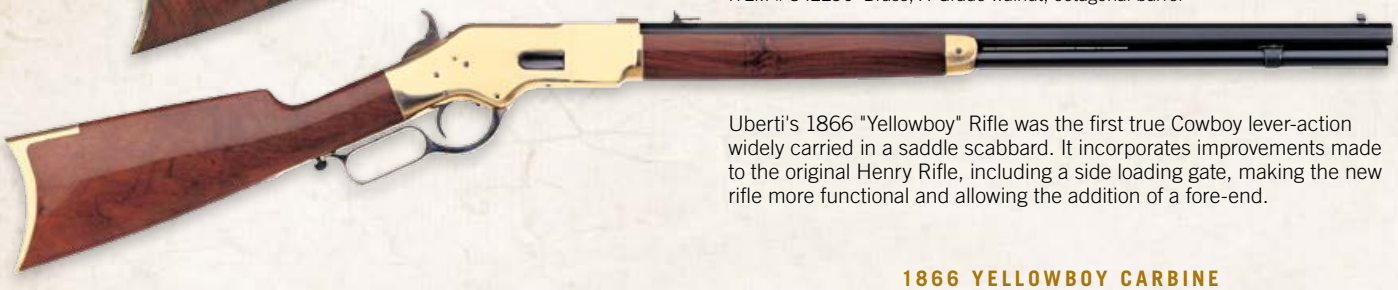
ITEM # 342290 Brass, A-Grade walnut, octagonal barrel



Uberti's 1866 "Yellowboy" Rifle was the first true Cowboy lever-action widely carried in a saddle scabbard. It incorporates improvements made to the original Henry Rifle, including a side loading gate, making the new rifle more functional and allowing the addition of a fore-end.

Uberti's 1866 Yellowboy lever-action rifle features a side loading gate—one of the major improvements over the 1860 Henry.

Another improvement is the addition of a satin walnut fore-end, which is embellished with a brass fore-end cap.

All models of Uberti's 1874 Sharps rifles, excluding the Cavalry Carbine, feature double set-triggers, allowing the front trigger to be set to a very light pull-weight—an aid to accurate shooting.

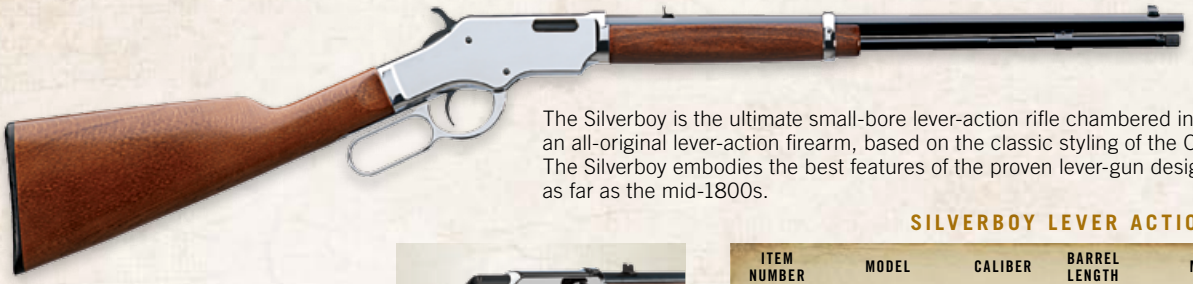
The Creedmoor tang sights used on Sharps rifles were of three heights, depending on the yardage. The lowest, short-range sight was good to 300 yards, mid-range to about 600 yards and the long-range, to 1,200 yards and beyond.

The top tang on the Sharps receiver is drilled and tapped to accommodate the attachment of a Creedmoor rear sight.

SILVERBOY LEVER ACTION

"Old West" small-bore lever-gun

SILVERBOY LEVER ACTION RIFLE — 19"
ITEM # 342350 Chrome-plated alloy receiver, Walnut straight stock



The Silverboy is the ultimate small-bore lever-action rifle chambered in .22 LR. This is an all-original lever-action firearm, based on the classic styling of the Old West lever gun. The Silverboy embodies the best features of the proven lever-gun design that goes back as far as the mid-1800s.

A cartridge-control mechanism allows controlled-round-feed so that the gun can be fired reliably while held at any angle.

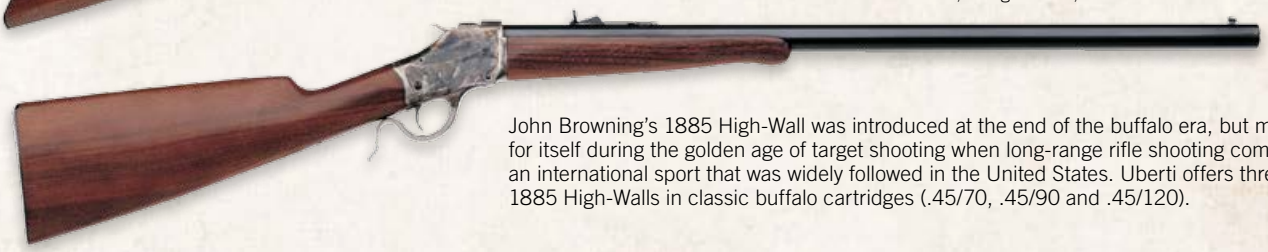
1885 HIGH-WALL
Long-Range Target Rifle

1885 HIGH-WALL SINGLE-SHOT SPORTING RIFLE — 30"
ITEM #348800 Case-hardened, A-Grade walnut, octagonal barrel

1885 HIGH-WALL SINGLE-SHOT SPECIAL SPORTING RIFLE — 32"
ITEM #348918 Satin walnut, checkered pistol grip, octagonal barrel.

1885 HIGH-WALL SINGLE-SHOT CARBINE — 28"
ITEM #348700 Satin walnut, straight stock, round barrel.



John Browning's 1885 High-Wall was introduced at the end of the buffalo era, but made a name for itself during the golden age of target shooting when long-range rifle shooting competition was an international sport that was widely followed in the United States. Uberti offers three models of 1885 High-Walls in classic buffalo cartridges (.45/70, .45/90 and .45/120).

The 1885 High-Wall's loading lever (left), opens or locks the rifle's falling-block action (right).

Uberti's 1885 High-Wall single-shot rifles include a breakdown cleaning rod that fits in a compartment located in the buttstock.

The .45-70 Government (left) got its name from the .45-caliber bullet with a cartridge case holding 70 grains of black powder adopted by the U.S. Military in the 1870s. The .45-90 (center) held 90 grains of black powder and the buffalo hunter's favorite, the .45-120 (right) held a whopping 120 grains of powder.

The front sight of the High-Wall Sporting model is dovetailed into the octagonal barrel and can be drifted for windage.

SIGHTS Creedmoor Rear Tang Sights and Globe Tunnel Front

The Creedmoor tang sights used on Sharps rifles were of three heights, depending on the yardage. The lowest, short-range sight was good to 300 yards, the mid-range to about 600 yards and long-range to 1,200 yards and beyond.

At very long range, with the rear sight elevated nearly to its limit, it was important to keep the rifle completely level to maintain accuracy. Consequently, front globe sights were often fitted with a spirit level so that the shooter could see that the bubble was centered and the gun was level before he touched the trigger.
